Employee Mindfulness: Keeping your employees focused on their jobs will reduce the potential for injuries and help your organization achieve optimal efficiency. This ground-breaking session will address issues associated with worker fatigue, sleep deprivation, and general wellness, and will provide strategies for establishing and maintaining a healthy workforce.

D.O.T. Regulatory Update: The Department of Transportation has important regulations that apply to many employers, and not just those that operate large trucks. Do you know if your operation comes under D.O.T. regulations? Join us to find out. Hours of Service (HOS) rules, when to placard hazardous materials, proper load securement, and vehicle maintenance requirements will be discussed.

Workers' Compensation Fraud/Integrity Testing: Find out how to identify potential fraudulent claims and what to do to protect your organization. The second part of this session will cover integrity testing, and how this inexpensive and effective method of employment screening can help you make better hiring decisions, and save your organization thousands of dollars.

Employment Law Update: This presentation will discuss employment law issues including hiring, termination, and testing, and will include recent legislative developments and EEOC policy changes. This seminar will also include an update on Colorado's marijuana laws as they apply to employers.

Workers' Compensation Claims Management: Managing workers' compensation claims is as important as managing any other aspect of your operation. Mismanaged claims can cost your organization thousands of dollars in lost productivity and increased insurance premiums. This seminar will help attendees understand the most important aspects of claims management, and how best to handle claim situations from beginning to end.

OSHA Regulatory Update: Our annual OSHA Update will provide attendees with up-to-date information regarding any changes in standards, as well as local, regional, and national emphasis programs. This session will be presented by an OSHA representative, and will give attendees the opportunity to ask specific questions that address their respective operations.
